Read Notes From Your Visit With Your Physician

Your physician is participating in a pilot program called OpenNotes, an initiative that provides patients with online access to their physicians' notes.

The goal of this pilot is to determine if ready access to physician notes can be a helpful tool for our patients. Research at other medical centers has shown that patients who use OpenNotes reported that they were better prepared for visits and better understood their health conditions and treatment plan.

If you have an office visit during the pilot, a note from your visit may be available via My CS-Link™. To access your note, click the "Review After Visit Summary" button on the homepage of your My CS-Link account, then click on the date of your recent visit and scroll down to the Progress Notes section.

It is important to understand that OpenNotes is a voluntary pilot program, and not all physicians are participating. You may not see a progress note if you are not seen by a participating physician, or if you do not have a note available for release.
